NBAD TACKLE BOX NEWS

National Bass Association of the Deaf

Founded by Anthony Mowad and Robert Southwell at Toledo Bend, LA in 1976

APRIL 1, 1989

OH ! KENTUCKY -- HERE IS WHERE THE ACTION IS !
JUNE 1989 -- WHEN THE WELLS DRY, WE KNOW THE WORTH OF WATER AND NEW PLACE.

The fourteen Annual National Bass of the Deaf to be hosted by Wisc. Deaf Sport Club is in progress and several events are scheduled for the weeks activity.

Last year the thirteen Annual National Bass Association of the Deaf team tournament was sponsored by Olathe Bass Club of the Deaf which made that tournament a successful event and set a new record of 124 anglers at Truman Lake, Missouri and beat old record of 118 anglers by Indiana Bass Association of the Deaf at Kentucky Lake, Ky.

The goal is attracting over 124 anglers to compete in National Bass Association of the Deaf Fourteen Annual Team Tournament at Barkley Lake Ky.

Plan your vacation with your family and friends at Barkley Lake, Ky. on June 13, 14, and 15, 1989. Records are not records until they are broken each time. Come one Come all. Lets see more records be broken this summer.

N. B. A. D. Officers wishes everyone who has been to W.B.A.D. once before to plan to be there this summer. Imagine what a big crowd we can have. Advice all of you to make sure that you have a plenty of foods and gas before arrive there.

Hope to see all of you, old and new bass anglers and friends at Barkley Lake, Kentucky.

We NBAD are celebrating our 14th Anniversary in 1989.

Friends, Members, and Affiliations:

Sometimes we need to say thank you to some very special members in our organization that have helped us along the way. This letter is a special thank to some members that have helped NBAD in the past 13 years.

NBAD was brought into existences by two people who had a dream, Robert Southwell and late Anthony Mowad, our co-founders. They provided members how to compete and love what members were doing in 1976, we took over the organization with many affiliations. In 1988, NBAD incorporated doing business as Team Tournament by this time we serve more than 18 affiliations.

As we look back on all this, we can now see that we at NBAD have been truly blessed.

We are truly thankful for all our good members and affiliations who have helped NBAD get where we are today.

Hope, you remain attending at NBAD Team Tournament.
Be a NBAD Royal!

We NBAD need you & your moral support.

Truly Yours,
NBAD Officers

From: NBAD Secretary-Treasurer Timothy M. Schriver

VIEWPOINT

With a certain sense of history, we present a new NBAD History and Record book today that began last year. We are astonished and are very proud of the effort which has gone into memorizing our Publicity Director Clarence A. Cox who recent passed away in August, 1987. He was a tremendous undertaking person that began over a full two years ago. He was asked and suggested to the Council of Representatives about the History & Record book. We said no, because of the expense, however, he didnt show it to us. Even though we are proud of Clarence - our member - for him, it was for you, the members, who guided him through this evolution. Our present Publicity Director Martin H. Miller accepted and took Clarence's hand to print the book.

More than several years ago, NBAD began investigating ways to improve. Since the beginning, you the members were driving force behind this effort. In a series of surveys, we asked you what you liked and what you didnt like. You told us and we listened. Finally, we implemented the changes and improvements you wanted. At the same time, however, we never lost sight of what makes NBAD unique and enjoyed over a double membership and new huge affiliations.

We know NBAD's "good news" philosophy is what has accounted for the Tacklebox Newsletters' success for more than thirteen years. We are convinced that the same philosophy will assure NBAD's success through this century, as well. Our evolution is not change for change's sake. Indeed, the foundation of NBAD by our co-founders Robert Southwell and late Athony Mowad, remains unchanged.

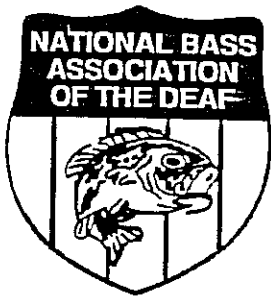

Rest assured, we still cling to NBAD's basic formula for good, decent, members fishing.

In fact, our surveys indicate America for the Deaf is returning to its SPORTSMANSHIP.

You have asked us to provide information about successful tournament, affiliations, the importance of members and friends in general, good moral support as well as our dream.

And so as NBAD approaches the 21st century it does so with a new appearance in a Team Tournament.

We're sure you will enjoy the History & Record Book.

A technical testing method will determine if the catch was dead at least 24 hours. Bass brought in for weigh-in will have one of it's fins clipped off. Trophy fish for mounting will have it's tongue cut in the middle.

9. TIES: In case of a tie in total weigh of bass on the stringer, the flip of a coin will determine the winner, the loser will move to the next place. The winner of the largest bass caught on any one day will be determined (1st) by weight, (2nd) by length, (3rd) by girth.

10. LIFEJACKETS: Wearing of lifejackets on tournament waters is required when power-operated boats are in motion.

11. REGISTRATION: The date, time, and place of registration will be sent out well in advance to persons who are interested in entering the NBAD Tournament. All contestants must register at headquarters. Those who arrive late are still welcome; they must register before entering the tournament. Meeting time will be announced at the headquarters. Tournament fishing hours will be announced at the pre-tournament meeting.

12. RULE CHANGE: Interpretation of the NBAD Tournament Rules shall be the responsibility of the NBAD Vice-President with approval of the NBAD Executive Board. Final decisions in all matters shall be made by the NBAD Officers with approval of the NBAD Executive Board.

13. ODD NUMBER ENTRIES: If a participant is the last contest(odd number) and fishes alone, he/she will earn $1\frac{1}{2}$ times his/her catch. The odd man in the tournament must be the Tournament Director or a NBAD Officer.
(See rule 4) for boat partner.

14. SAFETY: To ensure the safety of all contestants, no contestants shall be allowed to compete alone in a boat at any NBAD Tournament. In case of a contestant who, after completing pairing of boat partners in the Tournament, finds him/her without a registered contestant as a boat partner shall immediately be assigned one of several appointed observers by the tournament officials. The observer, as boat partner, shall know the NBAD Tournament Rules, be permitted to operate the boat and assist the contestant in any way, EXCEPT FISH.

15. FISHING GUIDE: No fishing with a guide within 5 days prior the first day of the tournament. Upon evidence of fishing with a guide, the contestant will be disqualified for the entire tournament.

16. KILL SWITCH: To ensure the safety of all contestant, the hosts operated with electrical ignitions shall be required to have the kill switch in the entire tournament.

17. BOAT NUMBERS: Participating boats must have numbered stickers, issued by the NBAD officials at registering. They must be placed on each side of the outboard in a clear view. Numbers from 1 to 10 are reserved for the NBAD and HOST Committee officials to be in easy recognition. The rest of the numberals will go to the participating boats. It is important to keep your number on or face some difficulties on securing an other numberal.

THE N.B.A.D. WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY ACCIDENTS DURING THE TOURNAMENT.

Equipment

- 1. Unplug your trailer lights before backing the boat down into the water. This will help eliminate blown lights.
- 2. A quarter-inch hole drilled into the plastic lens of your trailer lights will allow for rapid water drainage and save bulbs.
- 3. If a loop forms on a spinning reel, remove the spool from the reel and pull off line from the bottom. You will get to the stray loop much more quickly than if you pull off line from the top.
- 4. Wear several layers of clothing when winter fishing, rather than one heavy one. This allows you to shed or add, depending on the conditions.
- 5. Loading fresh line on a reel can be a mess of bedspring-like coils if you do it wrong. To keep from twisting it into hopeless kinks, the line must go on the reel the same way it went on the manufacturer's spool.

6. Loading a spinning reel is accomplished by first putting the factory spool at your feet. Stand directly over the spool, tie the line to your reel and begin reeling in the line. Give the handle about a dozen cranks, then pause and give the line slack. Does it kink? If it coils unnaturally, flip the spool over to the other side and repeat the process.

7. For baitcasting reels, tie on the line and put the spool flat on a smooth surface. This time, place your rod tip directly on the spool at the point line plays out. Begin taking in the line. It will lie flat and straight on your reel.

8. Select your line weight to meet the demands of the fish and the water conditions. If the water is clear and free of obstruction, use 8- to 12-pound monofilament. In heavy brush where the water is muddy or stained, beef up to 14- to 17-pound mono or even higher.

9. Be aware that heavy line can nullify the action of a small bait. For instance, the lighter the line, the deeper a diving plug will run. Match your line weight to the size of your lure.

10. Save valuable time on the water by working up a checklist beforehand; make sure all rods and reels are in order to the point of tying on the lures you plan to use first, gas up the boat motor and car, pack a sack lunch.

11. Repack the bearings of your trailer periodically. Bearing Buddies, the kind that fit on the outside of the axle, allow for easy lubrication.

12. Polaroid sunglasses not only protect your eyes from the fatigue caused by squinting in the reflected sunlight, they also help the angler see below the surface of the water.

13. When buying a tow vehicle for your boat, order the stoutest suspension option available to accommodate the extra load. Installing a set of headers or a dual exhaust system in the vehicle will boost engine performance.

14. Wear your life jacket, zipped up. The pros do. They know that in the event of a mishap, particularly in cold water or at night, they will not be able to retrieve it easily if they go overboard.

15. Maximum fuel economy can be reached with the high-performance hull by quickly reaching a "planing" speed that will get much of the boat out of the water, riding on top of the waves instead of plowing through them.

EQUIPMENT / 5

Wear Your Life Vest . . . Zipped

16. Carry a spare set of keys to your outboard motor and the locks to your trailer and tow vehicle in the event you lose your original set.

17. Check your fishing line continually for nicks and abrasions that could cost you fish. Run the line between your lips, which are more sensitive than your fingertips.

18. If you don't have anything on your clothes or swimsuit to clip a "kill switch" to, loop it around your arm while running the boat.

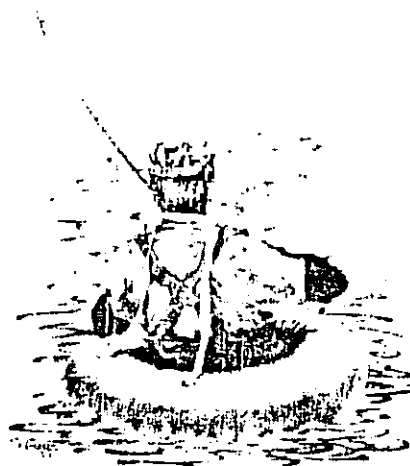

19. Never put your engine selector in reverse unless the engine is running. Shifting into reverse with the ignition off can inflict severe damage on the shift pin, control box and cable. Even worse, it can break the shift shaft, which requires the removal of both the powerhead and lower unit for replacement.

20. Take the time and modest expense to protect the spare tire on your trailer by purchasing a small lock.

21. Doubling the oil portion of your oil gas mix will often double the life of your boat engine. It's important when you constantly run at or near top RPMs. Mix your gas and oil properly. Put 3-4 gallons in the tank first, then add the oil, later filling the tank with gas.

22. Keep in mind the opportunities offered by innertubes, kayaks, styrofoam floats and other one-man rigs. While they may look more like overgrown bathtub toys, they can help you get to big bass heavy cover.

23. Quick check for the new boat owner: run your boat wide open and see if your tachometer is running within 200-300 RPMs of the recommended maximum RPMs listed in the engine owner's manual. If you are 500 RPMs off, take it to the shop to find out why.

Finding Fish

- ✓ 24. In searching for bass, always try points of land leading into the water. The longer and sharper the point, the better. Points offer feeding spots at all depths, plus deep water nearby. Position the boat perpendicular to the point and over deep water. Cast into the shallows and work the bait all the way to the boat. This way you are covering all productive depths on the point with a minimum of casts.
- 25. Sharp bends in a river or stream are good habitat for bass, especially on the outside hook where the current is swiftest. Here, erosion has disturbed the most rock and brush. Bass often favor the outside because it is deeper.
- ✓ 26. When you fish a flooded creek bed found on your depthfinder, position the boat in the channel so you can fan casts toward the bends on both sides.
- ✓ 27. Bass often hide in the safety of overhangs where they can protect themselves and still ambush baitfish passing by. Work your bait as close as possible to undercut banks and fallen trees.

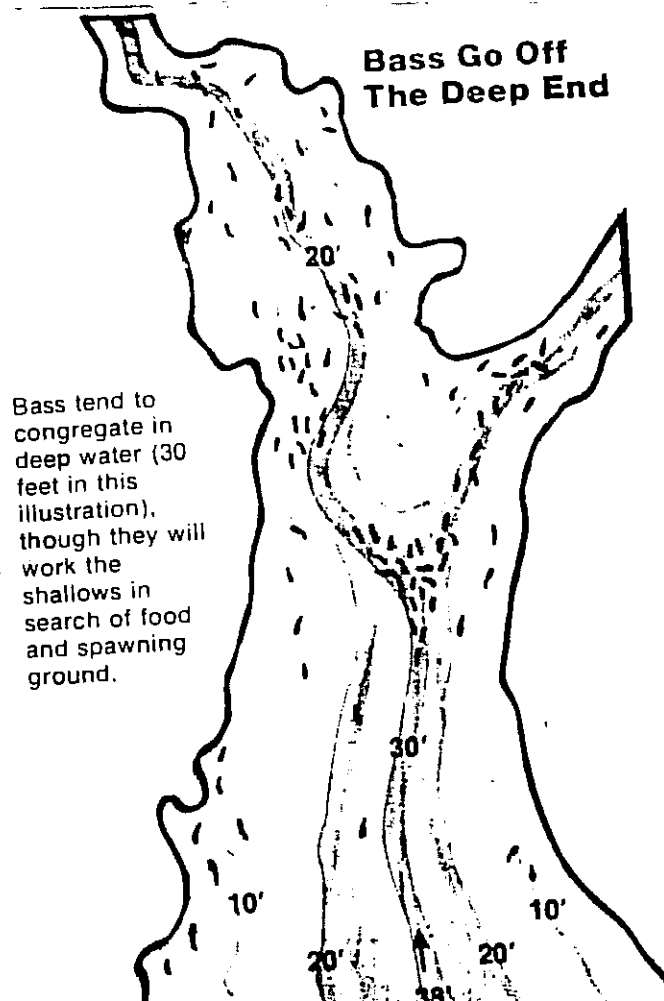

28. Wading can be an effective means of reaching big bass. A careful stalk can put the angler within arm's length of the fish, without a noisy motor or sounds from a paddle. A wade fisherman also has the ability to work himself into excellent casting position that many boats can not reach. Be careful not to push a wake ahead of you that will warn the bass of your presence.

29. For wading on sand, gravel, clay or mud bottoms, use rubber waders with tread or cleat soles. If the bottom is slick bedrock or boulders, felt or rug soles grip better. Metal cleats in combination with felt are best with very slick rock footings.

30. In power plant lakes, largemouths and other game fish will often lurk near the warm water outlet, especially in the winter when the rest of the lake is cold. Water in the area will be rich in oxygen and natural food stirred by the moving water. Best place to look for bass in these areas is in the eddies behind big rocks or at the edge of riffles.

31. Beat the summer angling pressure and boating traffic on nearby lakes by fishing at night. It will be cooler, quieter and saner — not to mention more productive.

FINDING FISH / 11

Bass Go Off The Deep End

Bass tend to congregate in deep water (30 feet in this illustration), though they will work the shallows in search of food and spawning ground.

32. Even at times when they are feeding in the shallows or spawning, bass will seldom be far from deep water.

33. The windy side of a point is usually more productive than the protected side, because wave action stirs up food and attracts baitfish. Also, the chop diminishes sunlight and visibility for the bass.

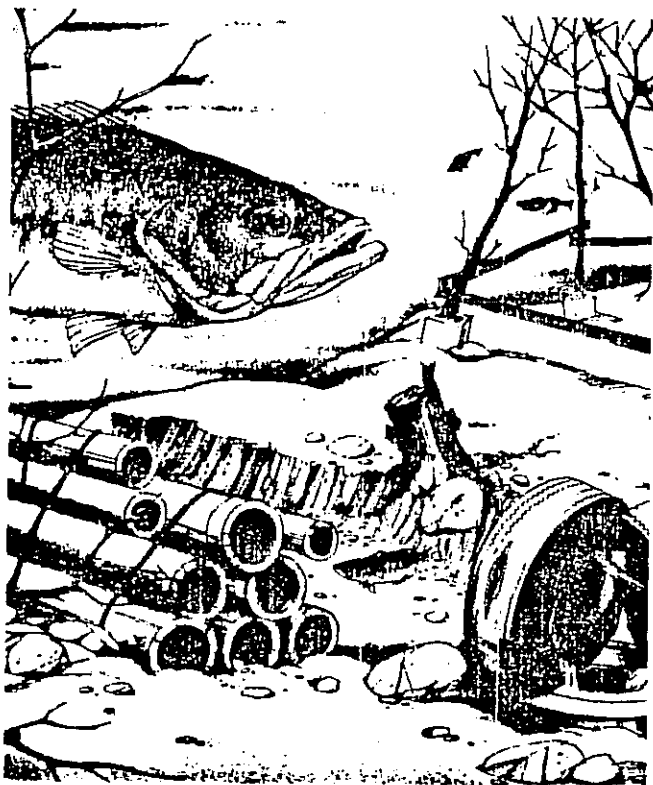

34. Most lakes near a large city draw heavy fishing and boating pressure on weekends. A majority of the fishermen will be fishing the banks. The angler who wants to save money by fishing close to home — where pressure is the greatest — must often move off the banks to catch his fish on weekends. Try flooded road beds, long points, underwater humps and drop-offs that show up on your depthfinder.

35. On brushy banks, fishing pressure can drive a fish deeper into the cover, rather than farther away from it. This is where flippin' or dabbling or doodlesocking can be deadly.

36. For best results in fishing lily pads, use pork rind. Put a piece on a weedless hook or fit it on the end of a spinnerbait or add it to a spoon. Throw the lure into the little pockets and alleys in the pads.

FINDING FISH / 13

Man-made Homes for Bass

37. Any kind of vegetation growing in the water can be a holding area for bass. Duck weed, milfoil, hydrilla, coontail moss, etc. are all good fishing spots.

38. Best time to learn a reservoir for likely hot spots is during winter drawdown or summer dry spell when shallow-water points and bars are exposed. Serious anglers take pictures of these areas or plot them on a homemade map.

39. Gulls can be a signpost for game fish. They feed on baitfish driven to the surface by game fish below. Schooling largemouths, white bass and stripers all force shad and minnows to the top where hungry birds wait for an easy meal.

40. Points thrusting into lakes are perfect for shore anglers because they can be fished just as efficiently from the bank as from a boat. Select the points with gravel or small rock rubble rather than the ones with larger rocks and boulders. It will be easier to get around on the small stones, plus you will hang up less often.

41. Some of the best bass fishermen in the world are also the most meticulous. They keep detailed logs on every trip. How many fish did I catch? At what times of day? What kind of water was I fishing? What was I using for bait? What was the water temperature? These reports over a period of years can give you an instant starting point the next time you go out.

42. One productive area for bass is often where a tree has fallen into the water at right angles with the shore. This offers protection for the fish and allows the angler to draw his lure parallel to the cover, where it will be exposed to the most bass-holding water.

43. In aging reservoirs where most of the natural cover has rotted, you can build your own artificial reef by submerging a bunch of Christmas trees, tree cuttings or old tires. These areas, which you will have pinpointed, will quickly serve as holding areas for baitfish and game fish alike. Check with local authorities first.

44. In cool weather, bass school vertically or stack up in a small spot. In warmer water, they spread out horizontally, covering a larger area. Consequently in winter, you have to search harder to find a concentration of bass, but when you do, fishing can be much more productive.

45. When fishing in a group, devise a methodical game plan. Have one boat-load of anglers fish one kind of water with a certain kind of bait. Assign another boat to fish different depths with different lures. Arrange a meeting place to compare notes.

16 / FINDING FISH

Lures

46. Single-blade spinnerbaits, which are designed for fishing deeper water, will hook more fish if you clip an inch or so off the blade wire arm and refasten the blade spinner to the shortened wire.

47. Fishing clear water without success? Try scaling down the size lures, using lighter line and a whippier rod.

48. The old adage "big bait, big fish" often holds true for the use of plastic worms. Don't expect many strikes on a 9-inch worm. But when you do get one, expect it to be a keeper. Best big bass baits are large worms, jigs and frogs, topwater Zara Spooks and buzz baits.

49. If your crank bait is running to one side, turn the bait's eye in the direction you want it to run. If it runs wildly to the left, for example, twist the eye to the right.

50. Vinyl skirts are considered better skirts for spinnerbaits when they are used for night fishing or whenever the bait is fished with a slow jiggling yo-yo motion. When the lure is fished faster, or in the winter when the water is colder, rubber skirts have the edge.

51. Rule of thumb: bright day, use white; dark day, use black.

52. If you're already using a trailer hook on a spinnerbait, and bass are still striking short, try trimming back the skirt. If that doesn't work, turn the trailer hook upside down so it points in the opposite direction from the spinnerbait hook.

53. In fly-fishing, use a wide, open-gaped hook with a very sharp point. The barb is bent low or removed. This assures the best chance of hooking any bass that grabs the fly.

54. Generally, the larger the front lip on a diving plug, the deeper it will work. To make crank baits run deeper: (a) switch to lighter line; (b) make longer casts past the target; (c) hold the rod tip under water.

55. Use the lightest sinker that will still pull your worm down into the "pay zone." Small sinkers allow your plastic worm to work more naturally, plus it will hang up on the bottom less.

LURES / 19

56. Most veterans hook their live minnows through the lips to allow them free movement. Hook crawfish through the tail. Both are excellent natural baits for bass.

57. Know your topwater plugs and how they work. The chugger has a concave face and pops when retrieved. A slasher has a propeller, sometimes front and back, and creates a spluttering noise. The stickbait looks like a cigar and dances on retrieve.

58. A poll of several leading manufacturers revealed that chartreuse is America's favorite spinnerbait skirt color, with yellow, black and white close behind.

59. At night, look for fish in shallower water than during the day. Use plastic worms, spinnerbaits and topwaters. Most popular colors in all three lure types is black.

60. After you catch several fish from a single spot and they quit biting, switch colors of lures and you may get a few more responses.

61. With topwater baits, size and action are far more important than color. As a rule, however, use dark lures at night or during dark nights and bright lures on bright days.

62. When bass are feeding near the surface in flooded cover, use a steady retrieve plug rather than a pause-and-jerk popping lure, which is more likely to hang up in the brush.

63. To make pork frogs and other lure dressings more soft and supple, add a drop or two of glycerin to each bottle. That shortens the life of the pork to about a year or so. Add more flavor to pork dressings by adding a couple of drops of anise oil to the bottles.

64. On short outings, say half a day, limit your lure choices to a few old dependables. You will catch more bass concentrating your efforts on a few baits other than scattershooting with a wide range of lures and wasting time tying knots, etc.

65. Beginning flyfishermen should select their bass bugs with care. Shop for hugs with moderate amounts of feathers, hair or rubber tails. The hook eye should be free of paint. Avoid tender, soft bug head materials. Cork and plastic are more resilient than balsa and expanded plastics.

66. If you recover a jighead that was hung up on a snag, check carefully to make sure the hook is returned to its original shape. Otherwise, out of tune, it will continue snagging even more obstacles.

67. There is a growing number of anglers who think bass have something of a sense of smell. Avoid putting oil, gas and other chemicals in contact with your lures.

68. Look at the first bass you hook. Is the lure barely hanging out of its mouth? If so, maybe your lure is a bit too large or maybe the fish just missed on his attack. If you have a slightly smaller lure of the same style and color, tie it on. If the bass is firmly hooked, you may be right on track.

69. Bass fishermen are learning what trout fishermen have always known: feed the fish the size food they are feeding on. Watch for feeding activity. If the bass appear to be dining on tiny minnows, throw small baits. If they are chasing big shad, go up accordingly. Match the hatch.

Techniques

70. Handle bass — all game fish — with care. The human hand can disrupt the natural slime coating that protects the fish from fungus and disease. When boating a bass you intend to release, thumb him or use a net. Handle it gingerly in the head area, take your pictures, then quickly return it to the water.

71. Have a small hook hone handy in your tackle box. Remember: sharp hook, sharp fisherman.

72. For close-order Flippin' work, most anglers prefer their clothing to be subdued in color. Except in the case of long dabbles or flips, when the angler must stand, it is usually best to keep a low profile on the water.

73. A good knot to learn is the Palomar. Pass the end of the doubled line through the eye of the hook. Grasp the loop and bring it up and under the doubled line, forming a loose overhand knot.

Holding the overhand knot with thumb and forefinger of one hand, take the loop with the other hand and pull it over the hook, then pull the short end to tighten the whole thing. Strip the excess and you're ready.

74. Know your local game laws. Many states are now experimenting with new minimum size limits on bass as part of a progressive fisheries management program and will not hesitate to cite violators.

75. When fishing a grub, if the bait hangs up on an obstacle, don't try to pull it loose. Tighten up on the rod and grab the line with your forefinger. Pull the line tight with your finger, as if drawing an archer's bow, then let it pop. A couple of tries should free the bait.

76. When tying knots in monofilament, always moisten the knot before tightening it, either in water or with saliva. This permits the line to slip more smoothly without abrasion.

77. You don't want that trophy-sized bass on the end of your line to jump. In the air, he could either spit out the hook or when it falls back in the water, it could land on the line and break it with his sheer weight. To keep it in the water, point your rod tip downward -- even into the water -- while still keeping a tight line on it.

TECHNIQUES / 25

78. For landing a big fish without a net, fight the bass until it tires, then bring it to arm's length and scoop it up by the tummy. This "belly lift" method momentarily paralyzes the fish and allows you to subdue it.

79. Most night anglers say unexpected flashes of light in a boat spook bass. However, a growing number of fishermen are going against that long-held tradition and fitting their boats with floodlights. This makes for easier boat handling, knot tying, etc. and does not seem to hamper fishing.

80. Save gas and precious fishing time by launching your boat closer to the area of the lake you intend to fish. Check out a lake map before your trip, particularly to unfamiliar waters.

81. On bright days, always work your bait through or near the shady side of an obstacle, where bass seek protection from the sun.

82. In springtime, when fish are scattered, set the trolling motor on high speed and move through the shallow water area quickly, making short, accurate casts to every target. The angler who makes the most casts into the most productive spots will catch the most fish.

83. If you have a hunch that a bass is lurking in a particular spot but several casts with a plastic worm don't draw a strike, make a final cast to the spot, let the worm sink to the bottom and permit it to lie there motionless for 30 seconds to a minute. Then, move it a few inches. This "deadsticking" method often draws strikes from lazy bass.

84. If newcomers make a mistake common to all, it is fishing too fast. Work a spot thoroughly. Give a likely place a chance to produce.

85. When fishing from the shore, walk gently, particularly in the spring when bass will be up in the shallows spawning. Boggy or hard ground will transmit the vibration of your footsteps and spook the fish. Sneaking the shoreline is especially important when fishing farm ponds and other small waters.

86. Best baits for working moss beds are plastic worms, topwaters and spinnerbaits. Try to keep these lures as close to the vegetation as possible without actually going into it, disturbing the bass and getting hung up.

87. Get the net ready before you hook that big bass, handle pointing toward you near at hand. Fumbling for the net during the battle creates havoc that could lead to lost lunkers.

TECHNIQUES / 27

"The Texas Rig"

Step 1

Step 2

Step 3

Step 4

88. Most popular plastic worm style is the "Texas rig." Penetrate the head of the worm with the point of the hook and push it into the body of the worm. Then cut the side. Pull the worm up the hook so that it covers the eye and knot. Turn the hook over and re-insert the point into the worm. This rig will be virtually weedless.

89. Attaching a rubber-core sinker ahead of the lure will help most any bait run deeper.

90. Flippin' accuracy will improve with practice. Set up targets 20-22 feet away and work on swinging the bait at the objective. Standing on a low stool about 18 inches off the ground will simulate your height above the water when you go flippin' for real.

91. To keep a jig from twisting your line, tie on a barrel swivel to the end of your line, then attach your lure with about a 6-inch leader. This eliminates kink yet allows the bait to move freely.

92. When fishing shallow water with any kind of bait, try to avoid throwing the lure directly on top of the exact spot where you think the bass might be hiding. Nothing spooks a fish quicker than having a strange object bombed on its head.

TECHNIQUES / 29

93. In worm fishing, try to eliminate any bow in your line. The straighter the line, the better the communication between the fish and you.

94. Fish parallel to the rocky rip-rap of a dam. This allows you to cover more water in a shorter period of time. Work your boat back and forth in front of the rip-rap, from shallow to deep. Best fish are often caught in 10-12 feet of water.

95. On schooling bass use a heavy spoon or tailspinner. Often the larger fish are working at the bottom of the school, dining on scraps that drift down from the active, smaller fish.

96. When casting in heavy standing timber, remember that what you see is not nearly what you get. You see only the very top of a tree. Far below, however, the fish may be clustered around the trunk. If a log is lying at an angle in the water, work your bait where the blowdown rests on the bottom.

97. Want to mount that fish of a lifetime? Keep it refrigerated until you reach the taxidermist and take care to prevent marks and wounds on its skin. Storing it in a towel or newspaper is better than a plastic sack.

30 / TECHNIQUES

98. Discovering the best topwater retrieve of any given day is trial and error. Sometimes the key is to let the plug remain idle for a few seconds before easing it into action. Other days, the bass will hit a lure that immediately leaps into action. Sometimes bass go for a plug pulled with hard, water-sloshing jerks. Striped bass like the third retrieve best.

99. An old-fashioned bandana can be as useful for the angler as it was to the cowpunching ranch worker. Tie the bandana around your neck and it protects the area just above the collar from sunburn. Or moisten it and wear it rolled around your forehead as a cooling sweatband. In winter, wear it in front to keep the wind off your throat. Squirt it with bug dope to keep the insects away. Hang it in your pocket to serve as a ready-wipe for your hands.

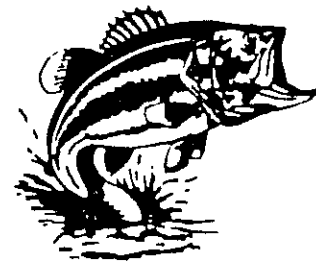

100. The fresher the fish, the better it tastes. Refrigerate your catch, then eat it as soon as possible. If you freeze the fish, store them in milk cartons filled with water to preserve flavor and prevent freezer burn.

101. Catch more schooling fish by attaching a trailing jig or grub to a topwater plug. Fish will be attracted to the commotion on the surface and hit the trailer, plus the extra weight allows for long casts that will help keep your boat from spooking the fish.

Where Dreams Come True!

WATCH OUT -- Drivers in Louisiana who grumble and complain about slow-moving recreational vehicles that cars, boats and various other items probably were not happy to follow this unusual caravan. The one-horsepower Amish wagon was powerful enough to tow this fishing boat to the boat launch for a week of fishing at National Bass Association of the Deaf. It was also slow enough and unusual enough to draw more than a few second glances sit traveled by Medford Magill and Ed. Wood.

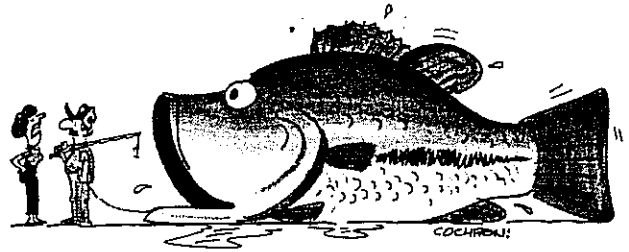

"You put too much air in your 'crawler."

"DO YOU HAVE SOMETHING ABOUT THE SAME PRICE AS A BASS-FISHING BOAT INCLUDING THE TRAILER?"

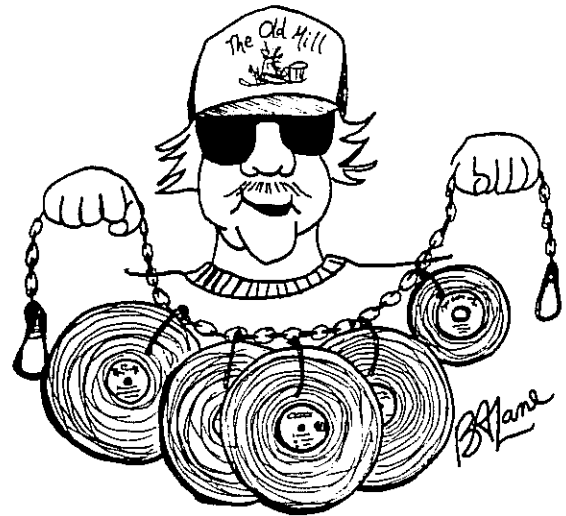

I just cook 'em, I don't clean 'em!

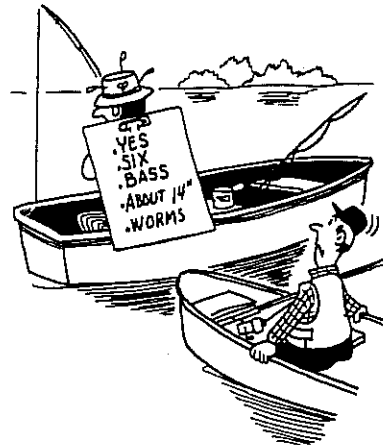

"I don't care if you did win the bass tournament. You're not bringing that thing in the house."

What did Harry's doctor tell him when he asked for a second opinion?

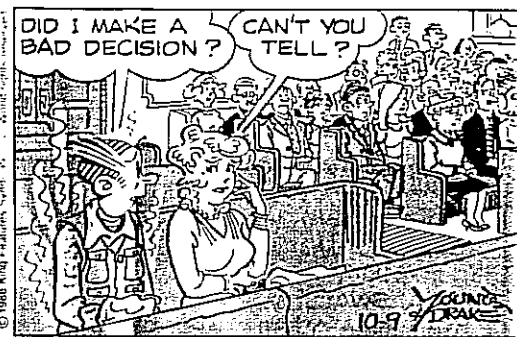

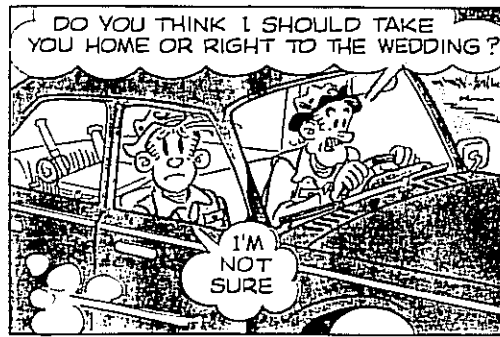

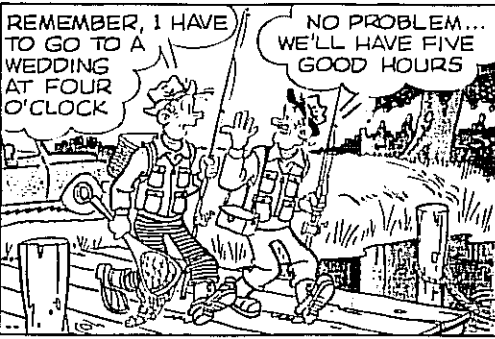

"Another record catch."
